

THE EVOLUTION OF A LIE

Appendix 1

People and Organisations that appear in the story.

People and Organisations that appear in the story.

The University of Wollongong – ‘UOW’

The Faculty of Commerce -

The School of Accounting and Finance

The Employment Equity and Diversity Unit - ‘EEDU’

The Academic Probations Committee – ‘APC’

People at and from UOW who take part in this story:

Dr. Corinne Cortese: this is the woman who generated the UOW lie with her informal ‘record of interview’ signed the day before Scott Dobbs’ interview by the Academic Probations Committee in respect of his application for a permanent academic appointment.

Dr. Mary Kaidonis: this is the woman who accompanied Corinne Cortese to make an ‘informal complaint’ about Scott to Robyn Weekes (see below) the day before Scott’s application for permanent appointment to UOW came before the APC. She is the woman Corinne Cortese described to the diocesan investigator as ‘trying to gather evidence for or against Scott ...’

Prof. Don Lewis: this was the man to whom Scott Dobbs reported the evidence he held of corruption in the Faculty, who advised him not to make waves. Don Lewis subsequently married Mary Kaidonis.

Robyn Weekes: She was the then Director of the Equal Employment and Diversity Unit (EEDU), who accepted the ‘informal complaint’ fabricated by Corinne Cortese with the encouragement of Mary Kaidonis and Jane Andrew.

She is pictured with Prof. John Patterson, who was the Chair of the Academic Probations Committee to whom Corinne Cortese authorised Robyn Weekes to forward the ‘informal complaint’ the day after it was signed for consideration in relation to Scott Dobbs’ application for a permanent position as a Lecturer in the Faculty of Commerce UOW.

Dr. Helen Irvine – Senior Lecturer in the Faculty of Business UOW and wife of the Rector of Figtree Anglican church, the Rev. Dr. Rod Irvine at the time of these events.

She was the 'bridge' that brought the by Corinne Cortese /UOW lie to Yvonne Gunning of Figtree Anglican Church who used it to encourage Lee Nicholls to make a complaint to Figtree and Sydney diocese (through the PSU) on behalf of her adult daughter Emma Nicholls.

Dr. Anne Abraham – senior Lecturer in the Faculty of Business UOW and member of the congregation of Figtree Anglican church, for a time in charge of small groups at the time of these events. She was also a parishioner at Figtree Anglican Church. When Machel and Scott Dobbs asked her and Helen Irvine to support him in his complaints about corruption, bribery and soft marking of international students both on campus and on the Dubai campus, she and Helen declined to do so.

Dr. Jane Andrew – Senior Lecturer in the Faculty of Business; now at Sydney University.

Jane Andrew was named by Corinne Cortese to the diocesan investigator as the person who was 'very close' to Dr. Mary Kaidonis and, with her, the original inspiration of the fabrication of a sexual harassment complaint against Dr. Dobbs in order to defeat his application for a permanent appointment to UOW academic staff.

Dr. Michael Gaffikin – Emeritus Professor. Scott Dobbs consulted him about the evidence that Scott held of corruption, bribery and soft marking of international students. He advised Scott to do what he felt he had to do but warned him that he would suffer for it.

Figtree Anglican Church (FAC)ⁱOur Core Values

Commonly held values are the key to unity. At FAC, they are the foundation to which everything we do is aligned and define what makes us unique as a church community:

Faithful at all times.

Adventurous in all things.

Compassionate to all people.

Clergy and staff of Figtree Anglican church who take part in this story

The rev. Dr. Rod Irvine (pictured here with his wife Helen) was Rector (Senior Minister) of Figtree Anglican Church from 1987 until he and his wife left in January 2008, having wreaked havoc in the lives of the Dobbs family:ⁱⁱ He and his second-in-command at Figtree, Executive Minister the Rev. Clarke decided to ban not only Scott but Machel and the whole family from Figtree after Phillip Gerber (PSU) had dismissed the complaint as a misunderstanding of boundaries.

The rev. Ian Barnett, Rector of Figtree after the rev. Rod Irvine left. Ian Barnett's first full-time ministry appointment was in 1995 to Figtree Anglican church, where he was under the ministry training and supervision of Rod Irvine. In 1997 he went to Shellharbour parish, and then in 2004 to Castle Hill Anglican church as Evangelism Director. He took up his appointment as Rector of Figtree in 2008. He has refused to carry out the Terms of Compromise negotiated after the diocesan case before the diocesan Tribunal fell apart, despite the Archbishop's specific request and direction that he do so.

The rev. Bruce Clarke

Bruce Clarke, pictured here with his wife Cathy, was Executive Minister at Figtree Anglican Church, which was the only church at which he had served up to the time he left in 2008 to take up the position of senior Minister at St. Matthews Anglican Church, Manly, and was inducted there on 15th November 2008. He telephoned Machel and speaking from a script, banned Machel and her children from attending church and all children's activities. He, his wife Cathy Clarke and elder daughter Rebecca Clarke were the source of 'the Clandestine Lie'.

The rev. Leigh Roberts, Associate Minister

Leigh Roberts, shown here with his wife, schoolteacher Merrilyn Roberts, was one of the Associate Ministers at Figtree during the early part of the case in early 2007 until he left, and he took up the position of Rector of Bulli Anglican Church in mid-2007. He was the convener of a meeting with Dr. Dobbs putting to him the accusation of sex abuse refusing to give the name of the complainant nor even details of the alleged abuse.

Captain Yvonne Gunning

Yvonne Gunning trained with Church Army and worked as a church army officer in a number of parishes for 18 years. She holds the Church Army 'rank' of Captain. She then acted as a consultant and trainer for Anglican Youth and Education before joining Figtree Anglican church as Children's minister in 2003. The details of the complaint (originally fabricated by Lee Nicholls) were sexualised and exaggerated by her, and denied by Emma Nicholls in her account, when it was finally obtained. Both accounts by Lee Nicholls and Yvonne Gunning were eventually discredited. She continued in employment at Figtree Anglican Church until moving to the far south coast of New South Wales.

Ron Irving, Youth and Adult ministry

Ron Irving was appointed Youth and Young Adults Minister at Figtree in 2005. He had been ordained as a deacon in 2008, after graduating from Moore Theological College in 1993. He was the enforcer of the ban on the older Dobbs children attending the evening service and youth ministry events, even those held at the home of friends, as a result of 'robust' discussions in the staff meeting which although uncomfortable about personally, he felt that he had to obey.

Faye Brampton, Pastoral Care Worker

Faye Brampton is part of a team which is "committed to providing additional spiritual emotional and physical needs of FAC members. She is also part of 'Caring in the Community' ministries, such as 'Meet N Eat' and hospital visitations." According to Yvonne Gunning she told Yvonne that her husband, Des, had told her that Scott Dobbs had told him that he was having an affair (or hoping to have an affair), which Yvonne Gunning identified as an admission of an affair with Emma Nicholls. Both Faye and her husband denied in separate interviews with the diocesan investigator any such conversation.

Jane Major Smith, Integration Minister

Jane Major-Smith is 'responsible for the oversight and development of welcoming and connection ministries at FAC – helping people to integrate socially and spiritually into church life.' Yvonne Gunning, in her interview with the diocesan investigator said that Jane Major-Smith was the leader of the refreshment ministry (which included the serving of coffee) and that Scott was appointed to that ministry by the FAC staff.

Lisa Delaney, Assistant Children's Minister

Lisa Delaney is Assistant to Yvonne Gunning in the Children's Ministries. Not only is she responsible for mid-week and weekend programs pre-school age children she 'also assists with Family Services and key outreach events for school aged children.' She has been diligent in carrying out the parish directive to shun Mabelle Dobbs and her school-aged children.

Helen Wilmot, former Part-time Figtree staff member

She has since been employed in a clerical position at UOW. She is a committee member for the Cross Connections Art Exhibition held each year at UOW in which Mabelle Dobbs exhibited her paintings. She has been vocally abusive towards Mabelle Dobbs when they met at the exhibition since Figtree issued its 'order' to parishioners to shun the Dobbs family. She abused and assaulted Mabelle Dobbs during and after a church service at FAC.

Wardens of FAC Parish CouncilDavid Reynolds, People's Warden

David Reynolds (pictured with a colleague at UOW) and his wife Julie (Principal of the Cedars Christian College) have displayed shunning behaviour towards the Dobbs family, in particular towards Mabelle Dobbs. Both he and Andrew Stratford (see below) were present in the evening service at Figtree when Helen Wilmot assaulted and abused Mabelle Dobbs during and after the service, which they ignored while upbraiding Scott for attending the service with his family. This they did even though it was well after the Archbishop had withdrawn and dismissed the charges as recommended by the diocesan Tribunal, and personally asked the rector and the former Bishop Al Stewart comply with the Terms of Compromise approved by the Tribunal.

Andrew Stratford, Rector's Warden (until 2012)ⁱⁱⁱ

After working at Wollongong City Council for 28 years, Andrew Stratford was appointed Community Care Manager for Anglicare Wollongong in 2009. He tried to force the Dobbs into abandoning their insistence that the Terms of Compromise be complied with by Figtree personnel as the Archbishop had asked them to do. He informed Scott and Mabelle Dobbs that he and fellow Figtree leaders were angry with the collapse of the case and that they had asked the PSU/Tribunal to set aside the Terms of Compromise (which neither has the power to do).

Bishop Harry Goodhew AO

After serving as Archbishop of Sydney from 1993 to 2001 Harry Goodhew returned to live in the Wollongong area where, previously he had served as Rector of St. Michael's, then Archdeacon of Wollongong and then Bishop of Wollongong, over a total of 18 years. He and his wife were parishioners at FAC. He knew within a week of Lee Nicholls making a 'formal' complaint to Yvonne Gunning that a complaint had been made and he held a session with Figtree staff to counsel them.

The Professional Standards Unit of the Anglican Church of Australia Sydney Diocese - 'the PSU'

The PSU was established in response to the clergy sex abuse scandals in Australia and overseas and the Director and staff are authorised to receive complaints of child and adult sexual abuse and other forms of physical, mental, psychological and spiritual abuse in the Anglican church as formulated in the Code of Conduct 'Faithfulness in Service' which was developed by the National Anglican church of Australia and adopted by individual diocese around Australia including Sydney diocese. This applies only to 'church workers' a term which was defined in the Discipline Ordinance 2006 (applicable in the Dobbs' case) to include clergy and lay persons in 'positions of leadership' which are then largely defined. PSU staff includes administrative assistants, counsellors and a chaplain. The function of counsellors and the chaplain is to provide support to the complainant. They will provide complainants with referrals to psychologists and other professionals as required by the case, paid for by the diocese.

Phillip Gerber, Director PSU (until 1 July 2009)^{iv}

Phillip Gerber is a former member Standing Committee (the "executive" of the diocesan Synod) and he has been active in church politics and a member of the National Anglican Child Protection Committee.

The Director PSU is empowered to make a preliminary assessment of a complaint and then undertake one of several pathways for the conduct of the case at different stages, including ordering an investigation and report, referring that report to the Professional Standards Committee for recommendations, and/or taking 'charges' to the Diocesan Tribunal (in the case of parish clergy) or the Disciplinary Tribunal (in the case of other 'church workers' as defined in the Discipline Ordinance 2006).

In the Dobbs' case, he is responsible for a serious failures of process, resulting in substantial expense to the diocese for a largely irrelevant investigation and wasting time of both members of the Professional Standards Committee (PSC – see below) and the Disciplinary Tribunal while it was clear that there was no jurisdiction over Scott because he was not a 'church worker'. He allowed the delay thus caused to impact severely on Scott, Mabelle and the whole family. He did nothing to protect Mabelle and her children from the extensive abuse heaped on them by members of the FAC leadership and parishioners as directed by the leadership, thereby failing to carry out his function in respect of them.

He resigned from the PSU effective 1 July 2009 and he took up a position as a Project Officer for the diocese of the Northern Territory, based in Darwin. This was announced just a matter of days before the date set for the commencement of the tribunal hearing which would first consider the lack of evidence to ground jurisdiction.

Jenni Woodhouse, Part-time Chaplain to the PSU

She has since resigned from the PSU. She was the draftsman of a letter from the parish sent to Scott on 22 March 2007 setting onerous and inappropriate conditions not only on him but also on his wife Mabelle if they wished to continue attending Figtree church. It was that letter which the parish was directed to withdraw under the Terms of Compromise negotiated by the Deputy Chair of the Disciplinary Tribunal of the diocese. The present FAC Senior Minister, the rev. Ian Barnett has still refused to withdraw the letter.

Chancellor of the Diocese Acting Judge Peter Grogan Q.C.^v

On March 29th, 2006, it was announced that Acting Judge Peter Grogan Q.C. was coming out of retirement to take up his appointment as diocesan Chancellor. The primary role of the diocesan Chancellor is to give the Archbishop advice on legal matters as well as issues relating to synod. When asked to advise whether the diocese had jurisdiction under the provisions of the Discipline Ordinance 2006 (Sydney Diocese) he advised that he was 'comfortable' that it had, despite the absence of any evidence to support that view. When the PSU was forced to obtain evidence, it was found that neither the Senior Minister Rod Irvine nor Executive Minister Bruce Clarke could give evidence to support that 'finding', but quite the contrary, their evidence made it abundantly clear that there was no jurisdiction. Had the Chancellor insisted that that evidence be obtained at the time (when it was available) the diocese would have been spared substantial expense and the Dobbs family another 2 year of pain, which is continuing.

Personnel of the Secretariat and the clerical hierarchy of the Anglican Church of Australia Sydney Diocese – 'the diocese'

Archbishop Peter Jensen Anglican Archbishop of Sydney to July 2013

Peter Jensen was the Archbishop of the Anglican Church of Australia Sydney Diocese during the major events of the case. Before being voted into this office he was the Principal of Moore College, the clergy training college at Newtown, Sydney for many years. His 'brand' of 'Jensenite' Christianity is called 'hardline evangelicalism' by his detractors, and 'new Puritanism' by Dr. Muriel Porter OAM in her book 'The New Puritans: the rise of fundamentalism in the Anglican Church' (2006). He was kept informed by the Director PSU Phillip Gerber in weekly meetings about all cases in the PSU. He failed to respond to the widespread shunning and eventual expulsion of Mabelle and the children from Figtree even though the Director PSU had given his preliminary assessment that there was no case to answer, only a 'misunderstanding of boundaries'. The former bishop of Wollongong Al Stewart and the present FAC Senior Minister Ian Barnett have challenged his authority and he was not able to obtain their compliance with his direction that they act to restore Scott Dobbs' character among the FAC parishioners and staff, and reconcile and readmit the family to FAC. He retired on 1 July 2013.

Dr. Philip Selden: Diocesan Registrar and Executive Officer to the Archbishop of Sydney

Dr. Selden acted as the gatekeeper for all communications with the Archbishop. His attitude towards Machelle Dobbs' telephone call complaining of the way that she and her children were being treated was recorded in his memo of the call with the dismissive words 'she seems to be upset'. He was particularly put out when the Dobbs wrote privately to the Archbishop at his residence about the abuse of their children by Figtree leadership, in an attempt to make sure that the Archbishop actually saw their letters or was made aware of their content. The Archbishop did not personally reply. He added a message to Al Stewart's video (see below) giving his approval of the way in which FAC clergy and staff had handled the complaint by Emma Nicholls, even though that involved de facto excommunication of Scott, Machelle and all six of their children. He has since retired and was appointed Honorary Pastor at St. Faith's Anglican Church Narrabeen. He was replaced as Registrar by Mr. Douglas Marr, former Bursar of Moore College.

(Bishop) Al Stewart^{vi}

He was Anglican bishop of Wollongong (as an assistant bishop to Archbishop Jensen) until 2009 but then transferred to the position of Director, Department of Evangelism and New Churches, Sydney Diocese. His videotaped message screened at all services at Figtree Church on Sunday 29th June 2008 implied that Scott Dobbs was guilty and failed to mention that the case had not yet been heard by a church Tribunal. An analysis of the improper nature of this is contained in my article and the Executive Summary "Sex, Lies and Videotape" (anonymized at that stage) a copy of which is reproduced in the Appendices. It is to correct the false implications in that video that the Archbishop asked him to make another for screening in Figtree in accordance with the Terms of Compromise, which he has refused to do.

The Professional Standards Committee – 'the PSC'

The Professional Standards Committee was established by diocesan legislation and in 2006-7 its' operation was regulated by the Discipline Ordinance 2006. Its function is to review the material gathered by way of documents of the original complaint, the declaration in reply from the respondent, the signed statements and report prepared by an 'independent' investigator from interviews with relevant persons and any other documents including the PSU file of reports of the complaint and other materials. The PSC is empowered to make a wide range of recommendations from admonishment, via payment of compensation to referral to a diocesan tribunal (if the respondent does not accept its' recommendation of removal from Holy Orders).

Under the Discipline Ordinance 2006 applicable to the Dobbs case, in the absence of the respondent accepting in writing the recommendations of the PSC within 14 days of receiving them then the Archbishop was required to refer the case to the diocesan tribunal for a full hearing. Scott did not accept the findings, but the Archbishop neglected to act until pressured to do so by Scott. As to process, the PSC has the Director PSU present at its' deliberations but it does not take evidence and the respondent has no right to appear, with or without legal representation, nor even any right to make written submissions.

In 2008 the PSC comprised Archdeacon Deryck Howell as Chairman and six other members elected by Synod.

Archdeacon Deryck Howell (Chairman in 2008)

Archdeacon Howell was rector of Hurstville Grove before a 21-year ministry at Centennial Park. He was appointed Archdeacon of South Sydney in 2003 until December 2009 when he took up a position as Rector of the parish of Rosemeadow. He refused to acknowledge the abuse of Machelle Dobbs and her children by the Figtree leadership, and deleted Scott's emails informing him of the PSC's lack of jurisdiction. The position of Archdeacon was abolished by Sydney diocese. In 2013 he was a member of a board behind an 'Anglican church plant' called SALT at Wollongong town hall.

Prof. Ronald Kim Oates OAM

Professor "Kim" Oates is a distinguished pediatrician and campaigner on behalf of abused and neglected children rightfully honoured and internationally respected for his work in this field.

The other PSC members in 2008:

Dr. Debra Tattersall, a medical practitioner in suburban Sydney, who, for reasons unknown, did not sign the PSC report.

Mrs. Colette Reed

Mr. Alan Lucas, Barrister

Mrs. Emma Collett, children & families' worker, at Christ Church St. Ives at the time and later with YouthWorks, a diocesan training organisation.

The investigator instructed by Philip Gerber, PSU: Ken Taylor, of Lee Kelly & Assocs. (now Lee Kelly Commercial Investigations).

Lee Kelly & Associates, at this time located at Pymble NSW, now Lee Kelly Commercial Investigations at St. Leonard's, NSW, supplied Ken Taylor on instructions from Philip Gerber of the PSU of Sydney diocese to carry out an investigation pursuant to the Discipline Ordinance 2006. On the website for the firm in its' current name this is stated: 'Provision of consistent, easy to read and succinct reports, supported by photographs, are a key part of our services.' This was certainly not the case in the confused and confusing Report that was provided in this case. It is not clear whether Ken Taylor is still an employee of the firm.

The Nicholls family

Lee Nicholls

Mrs. Lee Nicholls is married to Greg Nicholls and the mother of Emma and her two siblings. She was the link between Figtree, in the person of Yvonne Gunning (whose one-day child protection seminars she had attended some 5 times by the time she brought a complaint to Yvonne Gunning on 1 February 2007) and Emma Nicholls, who was not known to anyone of the Figtree leadership at the time of Lee's complaint. Lee Nicholls and her family were members of the Seventh Day Adventist Church. She had been in consultation with Yvonne Gunning about making a complaint since at least early December 2006. When making the complaint on behalf of Emma she asked that she be kept anonymous not only from the Dobbs but also from Emma. Emma was not told that her mother was the original and the only complainant (apart from Yvonne Gunning) until the time of the investigator's interview of her about 6 months later. It is clear from descriptions of Lee's behaviour that she also suffers from Obsessive Compulsive Disorder and Dr. Schloeffel, Emma's medical practitioner, identified her as both the genetic and environmental source of Emma's OCD.

Greg Nicholls

Husband of Lee Nicholls and father of Emma Nicholls. Apparently, he had nothing to do with the complaint brought by his wife and had nothing to say on his own account.

Emma Nicholls

Although I have access to photographs of Emma Nicholls I have chosen not to use them because in this sorry saga she was the one who was betrayed and abused by her mother Lee, by certain members of the leadership and staff of FAC and by the diocesan process, but not by the Dobbs family, who showed her nothing but kindness and forbearance. When she came back to visiting the Dobbs in late 2006, aged 20, she displayed strange and unacceptable behaviour; first, when staying overnight at her request, she left her bedroom late one night and went into Christopher Dobbs' bedroom, lay down and fell asleep on his bed and remained there all night (although 'nothing happened'); and then a few weeks' later she attempted to draw Scott's attention to her and staged an invasion of his study one evening and snuggled up to him and stroked his hair. The whole family had been trying to protect Scott from Emma's unwelcome attentions once they became apparent. She was taken to Figtree evening services by the Dobbs family from about October 2006 in an attempt to wean her away from the Dobbs and to make new friends. Lee complained that she had 'fallen in love with' Scott. She did not want to make a complaint about Scott. She wanted to preserve her relationship with the whole family, which was valuable to her, a lifeline in her increasingly unhappy struggles with mental and physical illness.

Dr. Richard Schloeffel,

MB BS (NSW), FRACGP, FAMAS, Dip Acup (China)

Emma Nicholls first consulted Dr. Schloeffel in March 2006, just one in a long line of medical practitioners and practitioners of other health disciplines, including a psychiatrist, in the continuing search for an effective treatment for her Obsessive Compulsive Disorder and various physical ailments. He was highly critical to the investigator of the insensitive and inappropriate way that Lee Nicholls' complaint was handled by FAC and the PSU.

Dr. Clarrie Pratt, former Figtree parishioner

Dr. Pratt has worked in the Wollongong area as a doctor for many years, especially in Drug and Alcohol, Aboriginal Health, and Pain and Palliative Care. Before arriving in Wollongong, he was a Salvation Army missionary doctor. He stood, unsuccessfully, for election to the NSW State Parliament as a candidate for the Christian Democratic Party (Fred Nile Group) in 2007.

Dr. Pratt's daughter Marnie was a good friend of Ellesha Dobbs, and he described the relationship with the Dobbs' family as 'fairly closely associated.' He wrote to the revs. Rod Irvine and Bruce Clarke and Phillip Gerber on 17 April 2007 complaining about the abuse of process and denial of natural justice in the way that all three had handled Lee Nicholls' complaint on behalf of her daughter. He gave them literature about Emma's OCD and recommended that they interview her psychiatrist before doing anything else. This excellent advice was not followed either by Phillip Gerber or the investigator engaged by the diocese.

He ceased to be a parishioner at Figtree in mid-2007, following the rev. Leigh Roberts to Bulli Anglican Church.

Emma Nicholls' Two Internet 'Pen friends'

Lance Wearmouth

Emma Nicholls started an internet correspondence with Lance some time before these events. He was a member of the Seventh Day Adventist Church who resided in Queensland and had a website that contained an invitation for troubled people to write in for advice and prayer counseling. He was a sincere man who became very troubled about Emma's role in the case after I spoke to him on the telephone, and, later Mabelle also talked to him. The Investigator's file and report contained an email from Lance dated 17 December 2006 stating that he would not be surprised if Scott had been sacked by UOW for sexual harassment. He told me that he had been told these things by Lee, or perhaps by Emma. The latter seems unlikely. In the same email, he advised Emma to go to Mabelle in order to put an end to that behaviour. Emma did not do this. Mabelle and the family were trying to get Emma out of their lives. He emailed me in 2008 before the PSC were to consider the materials, sending me a copy of his email to Emma counseling her to withdraw from the case, saying that she was only being used, and she had misunderstood Scott's kindly behaviour. His advice was not followed. He has since died from a sudden illness.

Sandra Hardwig (SanDee)

Sandra, who lives in the USA, was also a contributor and counsellor for Lance Wearmouth's website. Amongst the investigator's folder and report was a copy of a lengthy email dated 5 December 2006 from Emma to her giving details of the incident when Emma invaded Scott's study and snuggled up to him. From it can be deduced the date of this incident which was none of the dates put forward by Emma or Lee Nicholls.

ⁱPhoto source <http://www.figtreeanglican.org.au>

ⁱⁱPhoto: http://www.sydneyanglicans.net/sydneystories/figtree_not_forgotten

ⁱⁱⁱPhoto source

<http://www.wollongong.nsw.gov.au/council/publicdocuments/Documents/Annual%20Report%202002-%202003.pdf>

^{iv}Photo source: www.qhac.org.au/others.htm

^vPhoto and information source http://sydneyanglicans.net/news/stories/legal_eagle_flies_again

^{vi}photo source: http://www.sydneyanglicans.net/senior_clergy/bishop_stewart/